

BELL NUNNALLY ASSOCIATE MASON JONES ACCEPTED TO DAYL'S 2022 "LEADERSHIP CLASS"

September 14, 2022

Bell Nunnally Associate Mason G. Jones has been accepted into the Dallas Association of Young Lawyers' (DAYL) 2022 "Leadership Class." The program, started in 1997, is designed to bring together young attorneys from across North Texas who want to make a difference in their community and at the bar. Limited to approximately 40 participants, members learn more about Dallas; have opportunities for involvement with non-profits, the bar association and city politics; and complete a class project benefiting the community.

The "Leadership Class" is an initiative of the DAYL, an organization comprised of approximately 3,000 young attorneys across the region "dedicated exclusively to the needs of young lawyers and the community service projects about which they are most passionate."

Bell Nunnally has a long history of participation in and support of the DAYL Leadership Class. Since the program's inception, partners R. Heath Cheek, Saba F. Syed, Ross Angus Williams, Perrin B. Fourmy and David G. Webster along with associates Joshua D. Fuller, Alexandria M. Risinger and Sydnie A. Shimkus have participated.
