

LITIGATOR AND ENTERTAINMENT ATTORNEY BRENT TURMAN QUOTED ON CNBC REGARDING MOVIE THEATER REOPEN STRUGGLES

October 06, 2020

Senior Associate Brent A. Turman is quoted in the CNBC article “Movie theaters in jeopardy as studios move blockbusters to 2021, audiences stay home.” The piece looks at the fiscal health of movie theaters as they weather the pandemic and resulting shutdowns. It notes that a major release, “Tenet,” has so far failed to deliver hoped-for results in a partially reopened environment, boding poorly for the industry and coming against the backdrop of numerous pictures having their release dates pushed back. Turman, who is also former president of the Texas Association of Motion Media Professionals, commented, “A lot of companies have weathered the storm so far, but I think we all know the storm isn’t over.”
